MONEY, STOCKS AND GRAIN

Quiet but Strong Market at New York, with Absence of Interesting Features.

At Indianapolis All Grains Were Steady and Unchanged-Receipts and Shipments for April-Prices on General Produce.

MONEY AND STOCKS.

The New York Market Was Strong but Quiet, with No Unusual Features. At New York, Saturday, money on call was easy with no loans, closing offered at 142 per cent.

Prime mercantile paper, 34 @5 per cent. Sterling exchange was quiet but steady at $4.86% for sixty-day bills and $4.88 for demand.

The total sales of stocks were 131,658 shares, including the following: Atchison, 5,010; Chicago Gas, 16,936; Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, 7,960; Erie, 2,650; Northern Pacific preferred, 2,107; New England, 2,400; Reading, 18,200; St. Paul, 4,000; St. Paul & Omaha, 21,100; Union Pacific, 2,100. The stock market was quiet and in the main strong, but it was narrow as at any time during the week, presenting few features of interest in the general list, showing only slight fluctuations. The great feature of Saturday was the extraordinary snimation in Omaha common, which rose to first place in the dealings. The stock rose from 501/2 to 52%, but a portion of this was lost while the preferred stock was stubbornly held at the highest point. Reading was active as usual, but displayed no vitality and was traded in within narrow limits. Chicago Gas carried its price above 80 on the expectation of increased dividends in the future. A bear drive was made at Lackawanna which was supposed to be for the purpose of shaking out enough stock to enable the operators interested to cover their shorts, which seems at present to be the object of most of the raids made. Prices vield readily to these attacks, owing to the lack of speculative interest in the market, but stocks are so lightly held that the buying to cover immediately sends them back again, and little is gained. The market closed heavy, with most stocks within the smallest fractions of Friday night's figures. Sugar, however, was up 1% and Omaha 11/2. The dealings in railroad bonds were signalized by the return to activity of the old favorites. Erie second consols and those bonds led the dealings, contributing $103,-000 out of a total of $842,000. Government bonds were dull and firm. State bonds were neglected. Closing FERDINAND WARD'S PURPOSE. He Wants to Become a Very Rich Man by s Honest Means.

New York Correspondence Philadelphia Press. A report reaches me from some of Ferdinand Ward's Stamford friends that he has thoroughly laid out his plane, had decided upon his future business before he left Sing Sing, but has not decided upon the place where he will resume business, except that he probably will not come to New York. He may go to Philadelphia, possibly to Chicago, and there are some things which indicate he has some idea of going into mining, in which business he made his first legitimate profits. Ward has but one ambition, and that is to gain a fortune; an immense one, but to gain it honestly; and he has been told of a number of cases of men who, after serving terms in State prison, returned to business life and so conducted themselves as to regain some measure of respect, and also to become prosperous. Of course the most conspicuous case of this kind is that of Ned Stokes. While Stokes has no social standing whatever, he is of good repute in business cir-cles, is esteemed an aule business man, and while the estimate of his wealth varies he is set down as a very rich man.

William C. Gillman, the forger, who served a term in Sing Sing, is now engaged in business in New York city, is doing very well and has returned to his old associations in the Rev. Dr. Houghton's Little Church Around the Corner. Benjamin Noves, after serving a term in the Jersey State prison, returned to New Haven, was received cordially enough by his old friends, re-entered business life and his experience as a convict was not laid up against him.

The most remarkable case in the past of this sort was that of Rathbone. He was a the highest and whose business was enormous. One day there was a revelation which caused as much astonishment as did that which exposed Ward's crimes. He was branded as a forger, and a forger for prison, and after its expiration he came to New York, and, just as Stokes did, went | Sie; white Western, 34 1/2 @ 40 1/2c. into the hotel business. For twenty-five years he kept a hotel, became greatly re-practically to wipe out the stain upon his character. James D. Fish, since his release from the penitentiary, has been living very quietly in New York, and if he were a younger man he would undoubtedly re-enter business life. Every pleasant morning the old man can be seen with his little daughter. whose mother was Sallie Reber, the opera

General and Firm Reaction Set in at Chi cago in All the Trading Pits.

Russian War Talk, Bad Weather News, Foreigners Buying and Decrease in the Estimated Visible Given as the Cause.

TRADING AT CHICAGO.

Wheat Gains & Cent, Corn 11s Cent, Oats 58 Cent and Pork 1219 Cents.

CHICAGO, May 7 .- A right-about-face upturn in prices, with light trading, were the features, to-day, on the Chicago Board of Trade. Compared with last night, wheat, after its long decline, made an advance of 14c, and to-night shows a net gain of 4c. Corn is 14se up, oats 4se and pork 124c. The firmness was mainly attributed to war talk, it being reported that the Russians were massing troops on the Austrian frontier and the preparations were more warlike than for some time. The weather, too, turned colder, with snow in some sections of the Northwest, and this had some effect on the market. The receipts for the week at primary markets were about the same as last week, while the exports were larger, From both coasts the exports of wheat and flour were about 700,000 bushels larger, and from the Atlantic exports of wheat were 279,000 bushels larger than the preceding. Bradstreets reported that the available supply in Europe, affoat and in the United States was 31,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago, and also that there had been a decrease in the supplies of 30,000,000 in four months. The fact that Paris and Berlin quotations were lower notwithstanding the bullish news caused a loss of 'se from the top prices. The feeling at the close was steady. Pardridge was said to have been a good buyer of July around 824sc. Late signal-service reports indicated that more rain was probable in the Northwest. A decrease in the week's visible, it is said, of under 2,000,000 bushels is not likely to be accepted as bullish. The improvement in the condition of winter wheat, reported by the State boards of Kansas and Ohio, lead some to expect an advance in the general estimate to be furnished by Dodge on Tuesday. That, however, is by others proground that if private advices from California are borne out by the official figures there has been enough deterioration there to more than counterbalance the betterment in Kansas and Ohio. There was much nervousness in corn all day and the price kept climbing slowly. Receipts were under the estimate at 180 cars. Grading gets worse instead of better, with but one car of contract corn to-day. Cables were higher on corn, white lower on wheat. Export clearances for the week were 570,000 bushels more than last week at 2,478,000 bushels from Atlantic ports and liberal from New Orleans. More than all this, the weather was little improved over the corn States, and there were reports of further rains in Minnesota, Nebraska and elsewhere. The cash market responded first, and lots of No. 3 grade sold during the morning at 1c over yesterday.

The strength in corn and unfavorable weather in the West, together with good buying of May by Harry Wadhams, who was undoubtedly covering shorts, combined to make oats firm and higher. The provision market opened strong in sympathy with the higher prices for corn and wheat. There was some realizing and a reaction from the opening prices, but the market firmed up again toward the end of the session and closed strong at the best prices of the day. Freights were slow with light offerings of boats. Rates held steady at 2c for wheat, and 134c for corn to Buffalo. Estimated receipts for Monday are: Wheat, 100 cars; corn, 220 cars; oats, 190 cars; hogs, 31,000 head. The leading futures

Healthy Housework,

Harriet Beecher Stowe. A woman cannot work at dress-making or any other sedentary employment ten hours a day, year in and out, without enfeebling her constitution, impairing her eyesight and bringing on a complication of complaints; but she can sweep, cook, wash and do the duties of a well-ordered house, with modern arrangements, and grow healthier every year. The times in New England when all women did honsework a part of every day were the times when all women were healthy. At present the heritage of vigorous muscles, firm nerves, strong backs and cheerful physical life has gone from American women.

LOUIS L. GARFIELD DEAD.

A Young Man Who Was Convicted of a Crime on a Woman's Perjured Testimony.

CLEVELAND, O., May 7 .- There died in Brooklyn township, on the outskirts of this city, last Thursday, a young man of illustrious name, who has been grossly maligned. He was Louis L. Garfield, a grand nephew of the assassinated President. Eleven years ago, while he was living at Bryan, O., he was tried and convicted of shooting a man, chiefly on the testimony of a woman, who now lives in St. Louis. He protested his innocence, but could not prove it. Six years ago he was released from the penitentiary and remained in obscurity until a short time ago, when newspaper dispatches were published in all parts of the country saying that he had lett his home with the avowed purpose of shooting the St. Louis woman, and that he had been arrested in Cincinnati and sent to the work-house on general principles. At the time of this publication Garfield was ill with consumption at the home of his brother, a cattle-breeder, in Brooklyn township, fully cognizant of his approaching end. Before death came Garfield called his relatives about him and again declared his innocence of the shooting, declaring, moreover, that after six years of effort he had found proof that the St. Louis woman had perjured herself in the case, receiving therefor the sum of $200. Garfield, at the time of his death, was only thirty-seven years old.

AN ELEPHANT SWALLOWED WHOLE, Tale of an Eye-Witness-Unavailing Sagacity of the Doomed Brute. New York Tribune.

"Did I ever see an elephant die?" said the keeper, repeating a reporter's question. "Well, I did and I didnt." "How was that?" asked the reporter, feeling for his note-book. "I did not see him actually die," replied the keeper, without the vestige of a smile. "He was living when I lost sight of him.

He was swallowed alive." "This is going to be a pretty stiff yarn, keeper," remarked the reporter, as a shade of disappointment crossed his face. "I guess I won't need the note-book. You saw him swalled alive, chi I always ought you were an antiquity. I have su pected you to be an antediluvian. What did it, a megalosaurus!"

"Never heard of such a thing?" said the keeper, grufily. "This was a quicksand," "Oh, a quicksand! Go on old man," responded the reporter, delighted, as he pulled out a pencil or two. "Tell us all about it." "It was in India," said the old keeper, "where I learned a good deal about elephants, never thinking that it would come useful to me in Barnum's menagerie in after years. Elephants are common beasts of burden there, and on this day a heavilyladen one was crossing a shallow but broad stream by wading. The sagacious brute had refused to step on the badly-constructed bridge which the natives had erected; but his instinct did not warn him of a dan-gerous quicksand which the water concealed near the further bank. "I was attracted to the scene by the shouts of his owners, five Indian merhcants, whose wares he carried from one bazar to another. They did not know of the quick-sand, and could not understand why their elephant did not come out of the stream which he had almost crossed. When they learned the predicament he was in, their howls of grief and despair were earsplitting. I suggested that bundles of turf and branches be thrown to the elephant, and this was done. The old fellow, seemingly aware of his danger, took each bundle, with his trunk, and thrust it under water. Then, with a mighty effort, dragging up one foot out of the sucking sand, he would put it on the bundle of fagots and press it down. He got a lot of them under him in this way with more skill and precision than you would think possible; but the soft sand took them all in, and still let him down further into its depths.

oled it out to him. Then they took all his load of goods off, put them in the boat and brought them ashore. This lessened his weight a good deal, but the sand was by that time up above his spoulders, and soon his entire back was covered by the water. Only his head showed now, and still the old fellow was the only calm and collected individual in the crowd. I cannot help thinking of an elephant as a person, no one can who has been with them and witnessed their intelligence as much as I have. "Collecting some floating boards which had been thrown out to him, he made a sort of raft of them with his trunk and rested his big head on them. It was no use, how-ever. He was doomed and we knew it.

"His masters procured a small boat and

Before long the water covered his mouth. Then he lifted his long trunk and curied it over his forehead. The water filled his ears and he flapped them vigorously for a time. Soon it reached his eye-lashes and then his big burning eyes, just at the water's edge, took on a pitiable expression. They seemed to be seech aid and succor from those he had served so long and so faithfully, and his masters fairly groveled in the dust as they yelled to their gods and trothed at the mouth in their frantic Indian way of expressing sorrow. The tears came into my own eyes as I looked at the old fellow and knew there was no help for him. "As the water covered his eyes, his conrage gave way at last and he uttered a pierceing scream of fright through the trunk and repeated it several times. It made my blood curdle, I tell you. Have you heard horses scream in a burning building! It is almost human. So was the old fellow's death cry. The end was close at hand. Hislong trunk still waved wildly above the water, but nothing else of him was visible. Its length grew less and less, and finally the water poured over the top of it. One more bubbling, choked, gasping scream threw the water out again into a high jet, but that effort was the last. The stream quickly filled 'p his only channel to the air above, and the old elephant was buried before he was dead. I could have watched a dozen natives swallowed up in the same way without feeling half as bad against all assailants. Good morning, sir!"

"Good morning, Mr. Cieveland, Many thanks for your information." "Not at ail. Good morning." O What a Fish She Caught, New York Press.

"And you are a Swedenborgian?" he said to the fair girl beside him. "I am," she replied. "Is it true that the Swendenborgians believe that we are all angels?" "It is. Do you find it hard to believe?"

How to Dodge a Tornado.

"Not when I look at you."

As no locality is exempt, a little forethought will afford ample protection. Persons caught in the open field or prairie, if they only have the presence of mind to so act, can, by running due south from the track of the coming funnel-cloud, reach northeast and turn in from right to left as they go-the south side of the track being a straight line, while the north is sawtoothed in form. After all the years of observation these are about all the practical protection our knowledge affords. They will come, and we must make the best of the case we can.

No Interest in Milbank. New York Commercial Advertiser. The wide, wide world did not show the slightest interest in Mr. Harry Milbank's latest alleged duel with a Frenchman. It did not evince the faintest enthusiasin when the Frenchman was said to be noble. It does not care the toss of a coin now that he is promoted to be one of the best-known English dukes. It would not care if it were the baccarateer himself. We have all the cads we want of genuine American origin, and they supply scandals enough for a population twice as great as our own.

We have no need to look abroad for them.

An Indiana College. Purdue University, in Indiana, is one of the younger educational institutions of note, but it surpasses many of the older colleges in novel methods of instruction. In the engineering laboratory, for metance, there is a complete locomotive, the workings of which are minutely explained to the students. Likewise in the other laboratories there are many pieces of complete machinery, and on the farm attached there are blooded horses and stock of all kinds. Purdue, in fact, seems to be a kindergarten of a larger growth.

Or Accept the Inevitable. Minneapelis Tribune. Just 830 more delegates have been instructed for Mr. Harrison than for any other candidate. Or, to be more specific just 330 of the delegates thus far elected have been instructed and they are all for Harrison. It is time for the opposition to begin casting about for a candidate.
